

Lia Nicholson - Head of Sustainability

As Head of Sustainability at Terrascope, Lia is focused on fostering a community of practitioners across key sectors that are crucial for keeping the world on a 1.5 degree pathway.

Lia is an experienced climate leader who has worked at the interface of national and local government, business, and civil society across the Caribbean, West Africa and Pacific. In her previous role, Lia was a climate negotiator in the United Nations and senior advisor to the Alliance of Small Island States (AOSIS) - a bloc of 39 countries facing existential climate risks, and considered the moral voice for climate action.

Lia spent several years with C40 Cities Climate Leadership in West Africa, where she supported the mayor's offices in Abidjan, Accra, Dakar and Lagos to prepare city-level GHG inventories and develop Paris Agreement-aligned climate action plans. Lia received a Master of Environmental Management from Yale University, and met the late Queen of England in 2017 as the recipient of a Commonwealth leadership award.
